"You can come in," the girl said, returning. "She's lovely," she added, taking sight understood grand

Patches Christy. "I'm sure she'll have beautiful kittens." under quiet from lakes slept kittens

Christy blinked. Kittens! Patches having kittens? she remembered how her All Then Before

mother's stomach grown more and more rounded, because of the had never been some have the baby. So that's all it was, thought as she followed the girl. heart it she jump she Jest Them Her flooded with relief. But in moment her relief changed to alarm. more another so Cat Their She had been warned, these last few not to bump her mother. And piles months and the they she had kicked Patches twice. Had she hurt kittens? the rest yes

The nurse put Patches down a metal-topped table. Dr. Rodman with on year in. He was a nice young with a friendly smile. "Any time did came quiet man number rent occasionally now as " they be all right?" Christy questioned.

Did Front Will

put a stethoscope here and there the cat's stomach. "Yes.
Good That He with but on

They ought be all right." His fingers went the cat's body. "This as to jump over with you leg has injured, but it's healing." He took cat's temperature, was been grand an you the looked into her ears throat, and slipped a capsule into mouth, the rest and yes her them holding her jaws closed to her swallow. kind make do

"Just give her a place to sleep and plenty of and cat simple warm believe dirt do milk food. She'll be fine," Dr. Rodman with a smile. And since he leaving, he offered to drive Christy ___________ . home end door

Christy sat in the doctor's car ___________ Patches on her lap. It was ___________ and front with fast go hard to get used to the idea ___________ Patches was a mother cat. that to the