GORHAM-BASED MAJORS

(A question was raised at a Task Force meeting concerning the majors that are located on the Gorham campus. Associate deans compiled this information.)

College of Arts, Humanities & Social Sciences

Art
Music
Theatre
History

Given the amount of online teaching they do, Communication/Media Studies could be completed in Gorham, technically.

College of Science, Technology & Health majors that are located on the Gorham campus:

Mechanical Engineering
Electrical Engineering
Geosciences
Applied Technical Leadership (Dept of Technology)
Technology Management (Dept of Technology, 5 concentrations)
Environmental Planning and Policy
Environmental Science
Athletic Training (EHSS Dept)
Exercise Science (EHSS Dept)
Health Science (EHSS Dept)

Note: In some cases a few courses (typically outside the dept.) would need to be taken in Portland.

College of Management & Human Service

Many of the programs in CMHS are graduate programs. However, we do have undergraduate programs in Business, Social Work, and Geography/Anthropology. Business does offer some courses on the Gorham campus, but the bulk of the courses in the major are on the Portland campus. Social Work is offered almost exclusively on the Portland campus and most of its field placements are in the Greater Portland area.

The Geography/Anthropology program is housed on the Gorham campus, but they do offer some courses on the Portland campus.

Chair Farooza Pavri offers this explanation:

We do have a fair number of courses that are offered on the Portland campus. I would say that in any given semester we have a 2/3 (Gorham) to 1/3 (Portland) split of our courses. There is just one required course that's taught in Portland and the rest of the Portland courses are generally upper division electives. Our Portland courses are generally in either the 9:30 or 4:10 time slot, so that our students can spend the entire day in Gorham and travel to Portland in the evenings or vice versa rather than go back and forth.
